RADICAL DESPERATION.

The efforts of President Grant to force through Congress the bayonet Enforcement Act were strenuous and determined.

The United States Senate proved a suppliant tool. That body, to which the eyes of the American people have been wont to turn with confidence and respect as a break-water against popular rage and madness, has recently exhibited a tame subserviency and party malignity most shameful to behold. Instead of an exhibition of calmness, dignity, statesmanship and moral courage, its leading Republican members have been engaged for weeks in the unholy work of perfecting an unconstitutional, despotic law by which they hoped to control the Presidential election, and thus continue four years longer the reign of corruption and despotism.

The Senate passed promptly and without hesitation, the bill providing for the extension of the Ku-Klux Act till March 4th, 1873. All the influence of its advocates and of President Grant was then directed to the House of Representatives, to induce that body to become a party to the atrocious wrong; but the House, representing the people of the United States, refused to concur in the despotic measure.

Time and again, the members of the Lower House were appealed to by the President's henchmen to pass the bill as a party necessity, but the voice of the people for once prevailed over the motions of party, and the Senate received a well merited and severe rebuke.

The day of adjournment was fixed.

But when the time came, the Senate rescinded the motion, because the House refused to concur in the Enforcement Act. The adjournment was postponed one week, with the view of dragging the Republican members of the House into the support of the measure. Every device was resorted to by the Senate—every parliamentary trick known to de-liberative bodies—every expedient that Radical ingenuity could devise—was practiced by the artful and time-serving demagogues, who acted as the mouth-pieces of Grant, to force through Congress an odious election law, to drown the voice of the people at the ballot box in November, by proclaiming under the shadow of the sword, Ulysses S. Grant, the President of the Republic.

Another week passed, but the Senate still refused to adjourn. The time was again altered by continuing the session another week. There was no prospect that the House would adopt the mad and revolutionary schemes of the Senate. The latter body became reckless. It resolved at last, in direct violation of its plain and express rules, to add the election bill to the appropriation bill—knowing that the latter measure must necessarily be passed to carry on the operations of the government, and that the House would be compelled to vote for the appropriations. This ruse and bad faith were partially successful, in that the House was forced, rather than to have an extra session called, to agree to a modified election bill, which however, does away, in a great measure with many of the odious features of the original bill—particularly that feature which authorizes the President to suspend Habeas Corpus at his will.

While the Enforcement Act is thus shorn of its most dangerous powers, the form in which it finally passed is diametrically opposed to the principles of our Government and is a burlesque on popular elections. It amounts to little more than the appointment of spies to attend the polls and see that the votes are cast for Grant. But there is no power given to make arrests, or to otherwise interfere in the voting.

Because he avows himself in favor of giving to President Grant the power of suspending the writ of Habeas Corpus at his pleasure.

STATE MATTERS.

Our friends throughout the State will place us under obligations if they will furnish us with any items of news that may transpire in their respective sections, as we desire to make this department specially full.

MEET in Robeson.

DURHAM continues to improve.

The Senior Editor of the Durham Phoenix Plant is in full health.

The washerwomen of Hillsborough are contemplating a strike.

SEVERAL Wilmingtonians are expected to be present at the Boston Jubilee.

EVANS, of the Hillsborough Recorder, is on the editorial excursion North.

BUT very little cotton is being received in Charlotte.

JENKIN E. W. JONES, of Plymouth, is dead.

A GREELEY pole with an old white hat on it, has been raised in Milton, so says the Hillsboro Recorder.

The Newbern Times reports cotton farms in that locality—the cotton stalk is eighteen inches high.

The town of Tarboro has had a cold' stator—forty tons of ice have arrived there.

C. D. M. CARTER, the Congressional candidate for the First District, has put his war harness on, and is said to be actively at work.

LILLIE, the fair and beautiful child of Capt. F. N. Strudwick, of Hillsborough, died in that place Wednesday morning.

WILMINGTON has a rare flower of the "night blooming cereus" order that slightly attracts the curios to see it. It is said to be beautiful and emits a rich fragrance.

A North Carolina Detective in a new role—Joseph G. Hester in London. His Exploits ventilated by the English Press.

We publish below from two London papers accounts of the arrest of an American citizen, Dr. Brothers, in London, by two United States detectives—one of whom is the notorious Joseph G. Hester of this city. It will be seen that the extracts speak of the conduct of the Detective in language not at all complimentary.

From the London (Ont.) Herald, June 7.

His popularity and local influence made him particularly obnoxious to the Radicals of Greene county in a muddle. The Rads of the State will be in a worse muddle still on the second of August.

THE Rads of Edgecombe county have put forward their ticket. A McCabe (white) was nominated for the State Senate, and W. P. Madison and Willis Bunn, both colored, for the lower House.

GROWING ACCOUNTS of the crop prospects have reached the Wilmington Star. The corn crop is the finest ever known in the county. Roasting ears are being gathered, and cotton is in bloom.

THE Newbern Journal of Commerce published almost the entire speech of T. S. Morris recently delivered at that place and Beaufort, and owing to the large demand which there has been for this speech, the Journal has been compelled to republish it twice.

A most interesting Stockholders meeting of the Petersburg and Weldon Railroad was held in Petersburg on Wednesday. The report of the President, Mr. Reuben Ragland, elicited a sharp debate. A resolution was adopted voting a salary of $12,000 per annum to the President.

Gov. WM. A. GRAHAM will go to Boston in a few days to attend a meeting of the Peabody Trustees, in that city. He will be accompanied by his beautiful and accomplished daughter and his youngest son, who was admitted to the Bar at the present term of the Supreme Court.

HENRY PRIMROSE, colored, was burned to death at Durham on Saturday night last. He returned from Raleigh in the evening and complained of being sick and chilly. His wife refused, leaving him sitting by the fire; she was aroused some hours afterwards by a noise at the fire place, where she discovered her husband burnt to a crisp, having fallen forward in the fire.

THE "local of the Durham Tobacco Plant attended a picnic at McCown's Mill, where he says, "the mossy rivulet strays" and felt "as happy as an unaged bird." In his well written account of the picnic, he draws on his poetry machine and grinds out a verse ending:

What secret charms to memory brings,
All that on End's borders springs."

The young man is afflicted with a bad case of it.

THEY wanted some printing done at Buena Vista, during the Mexican war, and the General formed his brigade and ordered those in it who were present to step to the front. There was such a rush from the ranks that the general had to cry to them to "go back," before they were half done coming. Our foreman was there and was one of them.—Hillsboro Recorder.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Hillsboro Recorder, who has been on a trip to Warrenton, thus speaks of the old town:

The spirit of Communism still prevails in France, as is evidenced by the following extract:

"After three or four hours' ride we lighted at the Warrenton Depot where shell, the blackman, transported us in his nice little buck, the 'May Flower,' to Warrenton. It grieves me to state that this, at one time, the wealthiest place in the State, is in route down hill. Amongst other lacking it needs a good hotel, and lacks energy more than capital."

AN exciting discussion took place in meeting of the Council of Richmond, Va., a few days since, over the question of removing the Paradise tree from the streets. Some members contended that they were backed by the testimony of medical men to the effect that these trees were breeders of all manners of pestilential diseases, while others contended that they have never tried to put them in practice, in the way of their brazier leave of life.

There is to be a grand dress ball at the Yen de L'eu hotel, below Norfolk, on the 20th inst. It is expected that this opening ball will be a most delightful affair.

The Japanese visited West Point on Tuesday, where they were received by a salute of five guns, and subjected to the honor of shaking hands with Cameron and Ramsay.

NORTH CAROLINA AT BALTIMORE.

The list of Delegates from this State to Baltimore published by us last week and copied by several of our exchanges, was not complete nor altogether correct. We therefore re-publish the names.

For the State at Large: J. A. Engelhard, of New Hanover; H. G. Williams, of Nash; A. M. Seales, of Rockingham, and John Manning, Jr., of Chatham:

FRIDAY..... JUNE 14, 1872.

TWILIGHT OF THE HEART.

There is an evening twilight of the heart,
When its wild passion-waves are lulled
to rest.
And here we see life's fairy scenes depart,
As fades the day-beam in the rosy west.
'Tis with a nameless feeling of regret,
We gaze upon them as they fly away,
And suddenly would we be calm longer yet,
But hope is round us with her angel
lay.

Hailing after some happier moonlight
her whispers still, though lost their early power.

In youth the cheek was crimson with her gaze.
Her smile was loveliest then; her matin song
Was heaven's own music, and thy notes
of woe.

We're all unheard our sunny bower among.

Life's world of bliss was newly born;
We knew not care not—it was born
to die;

Flushed with the cool breeze, and the brows of morn,

With aching heart, we gazed on the pure sky,

And mocked the passing clouds that dimmed
the blue,

Like our own sorrows then—as fleeting and as few.

And manhood felt her sway too,—on the eve.

Half realized, her early dreams burst
bright;

Her promised boon of happiness seemed
but a dream.

Its days of joy—its vigils of delight;

And though at times might lower the thunder storm,

And the red lightning threaten, still
the air

Was balmy with the breath, and her loved form—

The bow of the heart was hovering
there.

It's in life's noontide she is nearest seen,
Her wreath the sunniness-flower; her robe
of summer green.

But though less dazzling in her twilight
dress,

There's more of heaven's pure beam
about her now;

That angel smile of tranquillity, loveless,
Which the heart worships glowing on her brow;

That smile shall brighten the dim evening.

That points our destined tomb, nor e'er
sees us die,

Till the faint light of life is fled afar,

And hushed the last deep beating of the heart—

The main bearer of our parting breath—
A moon-beam in the midnight cloud of death.

Mark Twain as a Reporter.

I reported on that morning newspaper three years, and it was pretty hard work. But I enjoyed its attractions.

Reporting is the best school in the world to get a knowledge of human beings, human nature, and human ways.

A nice, gentlemanly reporter—I make no references—is well treated by every body. Just think of the wide range of his acquaintances! His experience of life and society! No other occupation brings a man into such familiar social relations with all grades and classes of people. The last thing at night—midnight—he goes browsing around after items from the police and jail-birds, in the lock-up, questioning the prisoners, and making pleasant and lasting friendships with some of the worst people in the world. And the very next evening he gets himself up regardless of expense, puts on all the good clothes his friends have got, goes and takes dinner with the Governor, or the Commander-in-Chief of the District, the United States Senator, and some more of the upper crust of society.

He is on good terms with all of them, and is present at every public gathering, and has easy access to every variety of people. Why I breakfasted almost every morning with the Governor, dined with the principal clergyman,
and slept in a station house,

A reporter has to lie a little, of course, or they would discharge him. That is the only drawback to the profession.

That is why I left it. I am different from Washington; I have a higher and grander standard of principle. Washington could not lie. I can lie, but I won't.

Reporting is fascinating, but then it is distressing to have to lie so. Lying is bad—lying is very bad. Every individual in this house knows that by experience. I think that for a man to tell a lie, when he can't make anything by it, is wrong.
